

MAUNDY THURSDAY

For my mother

I watch him
crouch,
sponging the feet
of his friends,

drying their heels,
their calluses.
I hear Peter
resist,

I hear Jesus
insist,
water free flowing
from the wet bowl
of his hands.

